Additional Guidance

This section provides additional guidance you may use for your Project Statement, Curriculum Vitae, Letters of Invitation, and Recommendations.

PROJECT STATEMENT

The project statement is the most important component of the Fulbright application. Scholars with the most compelling, theoretically sound, well-written, feasible proposals are generally recommended for awards. Sometimes those with outstanding professional achievements assume that a brief, general project statement will be sufficient; it is not. To ensure a competitive application, your proposed project, as well as the strategy for completing it, should be thoroughly explained in three to five single-sided pages.

You should take great care in writing a clear and detailed description of the project that you intend to pursue. For all types of awards, you must demonstrate that residence in the United States is essential for your project, that knowledge in a particular area of learning will be advanced, and that plans have been made for the dissemination of the results in both Canada and the United States. Clearly show your project's relation to the study of the United States or the relationship between Canada and the United States and demonstrate the way in which mutual understanding between the two countries will be enhanced (i.e. development of long-term institutional linkages, relevance to contemporary public policy debate, shared knowledge in a particular area of research, etc.).

FORMAT

- The project statement consists of no more than five single-spaced pages.
- Use a font size of at least 11pts.
- Begin the project statement with your name, country and the project title at the top of page one.
- Organize your proposal in order of the following points, which appear in bold print, and use them as headings for sections of text in your statement.
  - Background: Introduce the research topic. Place the project in an academic or professional context by referring to major works by others on the subject.
  - Objectives: Clearly define the aims of the project.
  - Methodology: Describe the project. Explain the approach, methods, and plan you will use (for example, interviews, library or archival research, or laboratory experiments). Indicate whether the proposed research is quantitative or qualitative. Outline the expected timeline for completion of your project. Explain the choice of institutional affiliation(s).
  - Significance: Explain the importance of the project for the field, your home country, and your own professional development. Indicate what effect you expect the opportunity to have on your teaching or professional work in your home country. (For example: new approaches to curriculum planning, student advising or pedagogy; expanding knowledge in the field through collaboration with U.S. colleagues). Describe briefly the expected impact of your participation on your home institution, community or professional field.
  - Evaluation and Dissemination: Describe plans for assessment and distribution of research results in your home country and elsewhere.
  - Justification for Residence in the United States for the Proposed Project: Indicate why it is necessary to conduct the research onsite in the United States.
  - Duration: Explain how the project can be completed within the time period proposed.
  - Other: If applicable, indicate the quantity, format and transportation requirements for any botanical, zoological or mineral samples that you will need to bring to the United States for analysis.
- Including irrelevant or extraneous material may divert attention from the project statement.

ADDITIONAL CONTENT RECOMMENDATIONS

In addition to following the format carefully, the following advice has been passed on from former Fulbright Scholars, review committees and Fulbright staff and can assist you in preparing a more competitive and ultimately successful Fulbright application.

- Submit a clear and complete project statement that introduces you professionally to your colleagues in the United States. The best applications are those that reflect the applicant's purpose and intent.
- Make sure that your qualifications and expertise match the objectives in your project statement. You should be able to show that you are qualified to accomplish what you are proposing to do.
- Emphasize how your project will benefit the host institution or other scholars in your field both in your country and in the United States. Address in your project statement the ways in which you will use the experience upon your return. What is the likely impact of your experience abroad? How will you use what you learned upon your return, professionally and personally?
- Discuss any preparatory steps you have taken or will take before starting your grant. For example, if you plan to bring samples of plants, chemicals, human tissue, etc., indicate the steps taken to determine what clearance and approval processes are needed.
- Connect your past experience to what you are preparing to do if you receive an award. Explain the project's significance and its importance to the field. Focus on what can be reasonably accomplished during the period of the grant.
- Do not assume that your suitability for the project is self-evident. Your standing in your field may not be well known to reviewers. You need to make a case for yourself based on your past experience and current scholarly endeavours. Explain the significance of your project in language that will be understood by reviewers from outside your field.
- Do not stress only how a Fulbright grant will benefit you or your career. Remember that the program is intended to foster mutual understanding between cultures and nations.
- Be specific in describing your previous work and in laying out the nature of your proposed Fulbright activity. A frequent failing in applications is that the proposal is underdeveloped or too imprecise to give reviewers a clear sense of the endeavour.

STYLE RECOMMENDATIONS

- Express what you can bring to the program clearly and succinctly. Think of the basic questions that need to be answered: Why should I apply for a Fulbright award to come to the United States? If selected, what will I do and how will I do it? What preparations have I made to complete the project? What can I contribute to the Fulbright Program? What will the results of my participation be? Include only the most pertinent information in forming your responses so as not to exceed the page restrictions. At the same time, you should avoid writing a proposal so brief that it will be difficult for the reviewer to understand the project.
- Emphasize key points in the first paragraph of the proposal. Reviewers examine many Fulbright applications, and having to search for the main points of the proposed activity is not helpful. You should grab the reviewer's attention quickly and state clearly what you want to do, why it is important, and how you will do it. You should use the rest of the proposal to support your statements in the opening paragraphs.
- Pay attention to style in your proposal. You may want to use the first person, but you should avoid flooding your proposal with "I's" or referring to yourself in the third person.
- Keep your proposal simple and straightforward so that an educated reader from another discipline can understand it.

CURRICULUM VITAE

The curriculum vitae describes academic credentials and demonstrates a record of scholarly achievements (document should not exceed six pages). When composing a curriculum vitae, it is important to include:

- Education (universities attended, degrees earned, and dates received)
- Professional positions held
- Courses taught and other services provided to students and the home institution
- Publications (provide full citations and list them starting with the most recent)
- Other professional activities, such as workshops, seminars, and consultations
- Membership and activities in professional associations
- Professional honours, awards and fellowships
- Community service

The application asks for similar information but provides limited space for answers. In the curriculum vitae, you should expand upon these topics to present more completely your accomplishments.

LETTERS OF INVITATION

Letters of invitation should be on institutional letterhead and signed by a person with the appropriate authority. There are no specific requirements for such letters, unless specified in the award description. The letter should indicate:

- your name and current position - possibly a qualifier based on your selection as a Fulbright scholar
- the activities for which you are being invited by the host (research at an institution, special lecturing needs, etc.)
- the period of time for which you are invited
- the department/group which is inviting you and the resources that will become be available to you
- a description of the host's interest in the applicant's project and how it will benefit the host institution.

Invitations do not ensure selection for an award.

Scanned copies should be uploaded to the application.

If an invitation arrives after the application deadline, contact Fulbright Canada to arrange for its late submission.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Candid, frank letters of reference help reviewers place proposal within your home institution's current conditions and plans for growth. References also provide evidence of your reputation within your discipline.

The automatic notification sent to your recommenders will suggest qualifications they should address.

- You must register three recommenders. Do not register more than three.
- Please provide your recommenders a copy of your project statement.
- Recommenders should be people qualified to evaluate your professional work; the abilities you bring to the proposed project; your ability to adapt to another country and culture; and the merits of the project itself.
- Recommenders can come from your home institution, but at least one of the recommenders should be from a colleague in your field outside your home institution.
- If you have recently moved to a new home institution, one of the recommenders should be from your previous institution.
- Choose your recommenders carefully and contact them early. Their recommendations should accompany your application as it could otherwise be weakened by an insufficient number of recommenders.
- Do not ask someone for a letter of reference unless the person is well acquainted with your qualifications. A pro forma letter from a well-known scholar, a contact abroad or a prominent government official will carry less weight than a realistic assessment of your abilities from someone who knows you and your work well.
- Recommendations should be written in or translated into English.
- Recommendations should be submitted through the online application system by the application deadline.
- It is your responsibility to ensure that your recommendations are submitted by the deadline.
